Miami River Historic Sites

1 THE HISTORIC MIAMI RIVER

The Miami River was central to the birth of the City of Miami. Until 1910 the Miami River was the City's main source of drinking water. The ongoing employment by constructing 30 similar houses along what is now SE 1st and 2nd Streets, between SE 1st and 2nd Avenues. This frame vernacular style "Royal Palm Cottage" was constructed in 1897 from native pine with a gabled, shingled roof. The one remaining is the structure of its age, size and type in downtown Miami. It has been moved to Fort Dallas Park on the Miami River. The City Commission designated the Flagler Workers House a historic site in 1983.

2 BRICKELL KEY

Brickell Key, previously known as Claghoun Island, was made in 1909 when Florida Governor Napoleon B. Broward commissioned the State's Everglades drainage project. A portion of the project was the creation of the Miami Canal. When the Miami Canal opened in 1912, massive flow of water from the Everglades lasted three weeks, as the water levels there dropped. The sediment blocked entry of large commercial vessels in the lower Miami River, so between 1912-1914 the sediment was dredged and used to fill portions of the river's shore, Brickell point, and Claghoun Island. Today the beautiful Brickell Key has several residential buildings, retail, office space, and the five star Mandarin Oriental Hotel, surrounded by the publicly-accessible Miami River Greenway.

3 ROYAL PALM HOTEL

In 1896 Henry Flagler, owner of Florida East Coast Railroad and Florida East Hotel Company, built the Royal Palm Hotel. The luxurious hotel was Miami's first major tourists accommodation.

4 MIAMI CIRCLE

A 2,000-year-old stone circle was discovered during a mandatory archaeological survey of the site when two residential buildings were planned for construction. The south bank of the Miami River's mouth was a Tequesta tribe village circa 750 B.C.

5 BRICKELL PARK

Brickell Park is named after one of Miami's founders, Mary Brickell. In 1871 the Brickell family had a home on this location, and owned the first trading post in Miami. In 2000 an archaeological survey discovered the remains of the Tequesta Tribe burial ground in Brickell Park.

6 FLAGLER WORKERS HOUSE

Henry Flagler arrived in the late 1800s to build the railroad, the Royal Palm Hotel and other developments. When the hotel was built, he offered ongoing employment by constructing 30 similar houses along what is now SE 1st and 2nd Streets, between SE 1st and 2nd Avenues. This frame vernacular style "Royal Palm Cottage" was constructed in 1897 from native pine with a gabled, shingled roof. The one remaining is the structure of its age, size and type in downtown Miami. It has been moved to Fort Dallas Park on the Miami River. The City Commission designated the Flagler Workers House a historic site in 1983.

7 JOSE MARTI PARK

The site was an Native American camp, circa 400 A.D., preserved beneath river fill dredged in the early 1900s. Excavations in 1982 recovered pottery shards, shell tools, projectile points. Native American woman's grave and other artifacts. Dozens of similar camps existed along the river. In 1980 the location was known as "tent city", housing Cuban political refugees who fled Cuba during the Mariel boat lift. The site became Jose Marti Park in 1984, named after a Cuban independence hero and poet.

8 RIVER INN MIAMI

The River Inn Miami was constructed in 1906. Sallye Judd, restored the historic inn in the late 1980's. The active historic Miami River Hotel is on the National Register of Historic Places and was designated a historic site by the City Commission in 1987.

9 WAGNER HOMESTEAD

This pre-1858 structure is the county's oldest standing house. It was built by William Wagner, an 1855 pioneer, whose homestead included a coonite mill and Miami's first small wooden church, which burned down in 1892.

10 FORT DALLAS

Fort Dallas was built in 1844 as slave quarters in the William English plantation located on the north bank of the Miami River's mouth. It is Water Management District, City of Miami and the Downtown Development Authority completed replacement of the site's seawall and in 2011 finished construction of the publicly-accessible riverwalk.

11 SCOTTISH RITE TEMPLE

This 1922 building was designed and built by architects Kiemen and Elliot. Egyptian inspired temple is noteworthy for combining classical detail with Art Deco abstraction in elements such as two-headed eagles and a zigzag roof. The original and present owner is the Miami Scottish Rite Temple Association.

12 POINT PARK

Alligator Joe's, an original tourist attraction, occupied this location between 1895-1915. Today, Spring Garden Point Park is the newest park on the Miami River Greenway. Miami's first tourist would take a paddlewheel boat from the Royal Palm Hotel to Alligator Joe's. The City of Miami rezoned this historic site from medium density (R3) residential to Parks and Recreation.

13 SPRING GARDEN

Spring Garden was formed as a subdivision in 1919. It is home to an eclectic collection of artists and professionals. Its early residents included Majorie Stoneman Douglas, Miami baker John Seybold, and several doctors, lawyers and businessmen. Spring Garden was designated a historic neighborhood by the City Commission in 1997.

14 HINDU TEMPLE

15 COPPINGER'S VILLAGE

Florida's first commercial Seminole Tribe village was Coppinger's Tropical Gardens, Alligator Farm and Seminole Tribe Village. It opened in 1917 on land bought in 1911 by Henry Coppinger, Sr., a noted horticulturalist who came to Miami to plant the grounds of Flagler's Royal Palm Hotel. With his son, he developed the gardens as a botanical showcase. Seminoles camping on the grounds were encouraged to stay. More chickens were added and the area opened to tourists to provide income, food and medical attention for the Seminoles. Henry, Jr. wrestled alligators with the Seminoles.
